To Correspondents.

A long review of a popular book was rejected with regret; but various reasons, which we should be willing to explain to the author, had he favoured us with his name and address, induced us to think it not suited to our purpose.

The interesting article in continuation of the Jesuits was received too late for this number.

We have to acknowledge the liberality of our poetical correspondents, and to assure them, that several articles, with which they have favoured us, will appear in our next.

The lines by X. are not without merit, but they want execution, and a little more of the turn of poetry.

CORRIGENDA. In our last number, p 26, for “1812,” read 1813—p. 32, for “Philliberts” read Philliberto—p. 104, for “Russia” read Rousseau—p. 145, seventh line from the top, for “France” read Rome—p. 64, line 30, after the period, insert the following sentence; ‘The elder Buxtorf took up their defence.’
